Wickham Held On Charges Of Burglary

One man was released and another held to answer charges of stealing $25,000 worth of surveying equipment last November in City Judge Otto B. Willett's court this week.

Dismissed was Alfonso Aciego, 33 of 15227 Fremman avenue, Lawndale. Robert Eugene Wickham, 15329 Osage, Lawndale, must answer to charges that he stole the surveying equipment from the Isaac and Menke Corporation, builders of the new Pittsburgh Paint plant on Crenshaw boulevard.

In another court action, Judge Willett fined Darold T. McCormick, of Sun Valley, Calif., $150 for drunk driving after the accused had allegedly struck a pedestrian with his car.

ADULT EDUCATION DIRECTOR HONORED

The Torrance Adult Education program received impressive recognition recently when Director Donald Manashaw was elected vice-president of the California Adult Education Council, Southern Section, an organization composed of adult education teachers and administrators.

The Southern Section has 500 members and is headed by Dr. Peter Lee (PhD of Yale). The enthusiasm and strong support of Torrance adult teachers were the prime factor in bringing about Manashaw's election, he claimed.

Judge's Lectures Help to Keep Youngsters Out of Courtrooms

Ten high school students from Torrance and surrounding municipalities, together with their parents, this week appeared before Judge Otto B. Willett in the Torrance City Court and received stern reprimands regarding their future as good citizens.

Adults May Now Preview Fall Classes

All adult classes are now open to the public as a preview for plans for the fall semester, according to Donald Manashaw, director Torrance School of Adult Education. All men and women regardless of residence may feel free to visit any adult class now in session and talk with the instructor and students with a view to planning their registration for the opening of school in mid-September.

The last day of adult classes this semester will be Thursday, June 8. With the time remaining newcomers will be able to actually participate with class groups and see what class they would like to join in the fall. Classes now available for inspection at Torrance Night School include: Lamplashes (Wed. 6:30), dressmaking (M-Tu-Th 6:30), job getting (Tu 7:00), knitting (Tu 7:00), physical education (M-Tu-Th 7:00), shorthand (Tu-Th 6:15), textile painting (W 8:00), typing (M-W 6:15).

The following adult classes may be inspected at Seaside School: Gardening (Tu 7:00), leather, copper, textile painting (M 7:00), rugmaking (M 6:30), pre-school (M-W 12:30).

Repair Plans Approved By School Board

Preparation of plans and specifications for rehabilitation of high school buildings were authorized at a recent meeting of the board of education.

The work, part of a $1 million program planned by the Board, includes painting of exterior permanent buildings, sprinkling system on playing fields, lower and heating system for shops, painting of interiors where needed, and installation of door checks and hardware.

Meanwhile, Dr. J. H. Hill, superintendent, and Emmett W. Ingram, business manager, stated that the administration has been surveying property in the North Torrance area for a site for a new high school plant.

A 10.4-acre site at the north-east corner of Madrona avenue and Eldorado street is almost ready to enter escrow, the board was told.

The site is being acquired from the Canshlor-Canfield Midway Oil Company at a price of $2750 an acre. It will be used for an elementary school.

This is to be the last study meeting until after the summer vacation period.

The subject for the evening's discussion is to be centered around the future program of expansion of the First Christian Church, led by the pastor Cecil J. England.

Reflections

Memorial Day

By J. Hugh Snerley, Jr.

We'll reverently place a wreath on the grave of him who answered the last call, bow our heads in silent prayer, thanking God for the hero who gave him all, that we might live and enjoy the freedom for which he fought.

But, there are men, heroes, who wait for that call alone, forgotten. They breathe, talk and eat while waiting for a voice they know and love. They wait for news of home and friends. They wait for a letter or someone to lift them out of the shadowy half-life of a hospital bed, recognition, a handclasp, pat on the back, gossip about people he knew, what happened to the girl next door, the man up the street, his old job, how is dad's sore back or mother's club work—these are the things that are sunlight and all the beauties of living to him. Give them to him; if you can't go in person write him a newsy letter, regularly.

Remember the living heroes in our military hospitals, too. These men need you, now.
